Office hours: After each class

Course Description

Interdisciplinary seminar on the life-long development of individuals with exceptionalities. Topics include controversial social and educational issues (e.g., inclusion vs. segregation), legal, family, and economic issues, disability across the lifespan, communication disorders, hearing and visual impairment, autism, and acquired brain injury. Special emphasis will be placed on the social and historical factors that play a determining role as to whether impairment leads to the psychological experience of disability.

Unofficial Exclusions (UTM): PSY345H5, 442Y5. Please consult with Instructor.

Prerequisites: Enrollment in any Psychology or Social Science Major or Specialist and completion of 8.0 FCE.

IMPORTANT COURSE POLICIES PLEASE READ

Missed Tests

Students who miss a test due to circumstances beyond their control (e.g. illness or an accident) can request to be granted special consideration. Students must present their case to the instructor and may be required to provide an absence declaration and/or present original supporting documentation (depending on university policy at that time). Students have up to one week from the date of the missed test to submit request.

Extension of Time for Submission of Assignments

Students who seek to be granted more time to complete their term work beyond the due date without penalty, owing to circumstances beyond their control (e.g., illness, or an accident), must do so by submitting a request directly to the Instructor for the period up to and including the last day of the term.

Penalties for Lateness

A penalty of 10% per calendar day (i.e., including week-ends and holidays).

AccessAbility Services

All students regardless of learning styles and needs are welcome in this course as per university policy. If you have a disability/health consideration that may require accommodations, please approach the AccessAbility Resource Centre at your campus well in advance and keep the instructor informed.

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Honesty and fairness are considered fundamental to the university's mission, and, as a result, all those who violate those principles are dealt with as if they were damaging the integrity of the university itself. When students are suspected of cheating or another academic offence, they are typically surprised at how formally and seriously the matter is dealt with -- and how severe the consequences can be if it is determined that cheating did occur. The University of Toronto treats cases of cheating and plagiarism very seriously. Please take the time to review the Academic Integrity website:

<http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/osai>

Common types of academic offences are:

- Plagiarizing/concocted references
- Collaboration/unauthorized assistance
- Purchasing work
- Recycling work - "double-dipping"
- Resubmitting of altered work for re-grading
- Electronic devices (cell phones) or any unauthorized aids
- Altering medical certificates and official university documents

From the Code of Behaviour on Academic Matters: "It shall be an offence for a student to knowingly: represent as one's own any idea or expression of an idea or work of another in any academic examination or term test or in connection with any other form of academic work, i.e., to commit plagiarism. Wherever in the Code an offence is described as depending on "knowing", the offence shall likewise be deemed to have been committed if the person ought reasonably to have known." All students must refer to the following website to obtain information on what constitutes plagiarism. <http://www.writing.utoronto.ca/advice/using-sources/how-not-to-plagiarize>.
