1. COURSE OUTLINE

- Title of the course: Spanish and Health Sciences.

- Description of the Course:

In this course the theoretical and practical contents of the Spanish language are worked in an integrated way in the field of health sciences. The development of communicative competence (linguistic, cultural, etc.) is combined with practical work in a professional environment.

The course is divided into two parts, one of preparation and consolidation in the classroom and another of tutored practices in hospitals with a final presentation summarizing the training process.

- Course Prerequisites:

A B2 Spanish language level

- Course Objectives:
  - Provide the necessary grammatical structures and tools to develop communicative competence in Spanish within the hospital and health field.
  - To broaden and deepen the general lexicon and the language of speciality.
  - Integrate professional issues related to specific communication:
Understand and prepare written and oral texts (documents, reports, sheets, presentations, etc.).

– Student Learning Outcomes:

- Reflect on the importance of the interrelationship between linguistic, pragmatic, cultural and strategic elements for the success of Communication interactions in a specific field.
- Take responsibility for the importance of self employment and the control of learning in the process of acquiring Spanish for specific purposes (health sciences).
- To see the benefits of applying a reflective practice methodology in course development.
